BIOGRAPHY

Rachel is an HCPC Registered Occupational Therapist and experienced case manager. Rachel's career as an occupational therapist has been diverse and highly specialised, with a strong focus on working with children and young adults with complex learning and physical disabilities. After her initial work with adults and adolescents, she transitioned into community work, specifically focusing on children with complex learning and physical disabilities. She has worked with adults and adolescents with challenging behaviour in a specialist assessment unit.

Rachel became a lead occupational therapist working in a school for children with severe learning and physical disabilities. This indicates her ability to handle complex cases and her expertise in this area. She has extensive experience working in multi-disciplinary teams, which means she collaborates with professionals from various disciplines to provide comprehensive care for her clients. Her work involves liaising with social services and education authorities; she is well-versed in navigating the complexities of the social and educational support systems for her clients.

Rachel is highly experienced in working with families and carers who are responsible for children and young adults with complex needs. Rachel has patience, empathy, and a commitment to helping these children reach their fullest potential. This demonstrates her ability to provide support not only to the clients themselves but also to their caregivers.

She has extensive experience overseeing housing adaptations and providing specialist equipment for children and young adults with complex disabilities indicates her ability to create suitable environments and access essential resources for her clients.
