SALLY SAYS:

“Building meaningful relationships with children, young people, and families is at the heart of my work in case management and something I am truly passionate about. Working alongside individuals and families to identify priorities, support their goals and aspirations, and understand their unique needs so they can reach their full potential is a privilege I value deeply.”

BIOGRAPHY

With nearly 30 years of experience as an Occupational Therapist, Sally brings extensive knowledge, skill and insight to her practice. This experience has covered children, young people and adults covering a wide range of conditions and impairments. Her more recent career has been working with disabled children in the community, including cerebral palsy, autism, learning disability, ABI, challenging behaviours, life limiting conditions, complex medical conditions, sensory impairment and neuromuscular conditions amongst others. A central focus of her work has been supporting children and their families to promote independence and maximise potential, using creative solutions to overcome barriers. This has included the provision of specialist equipment, particularly for postural support and management, as well as advising on home adaptations to ensure a child can access their environment. She values working collaboratively alongside a team, coordinating services to provide the best possible outcomes to the child, whilst taking into consideration the needs of the whole family.

In recent years Sally has been managing a busy Disabled Children Service, leading and coordinating care for children with complex needs. She has significant experience in leading teams, coordinating complex care packages and supporting families through often challenging systems. She believes strongly in open communication, honesty and building trusting relationships, always ensuring that the wishes of the child and family remain at the heart of decision making.

Sally is known for her calm, organised, and thoughtful approach. She is a determined problem-solver who will explore every possible option to achieve the best outcomes. Above all, she takes pride in the relationships she builds with children, families, and professionals, working together to create supportive, meaningful, and positive change.
